Description

Wolf Garten BAM Multi-Change Soil Grubber

Manufactured in Germany to the highest levels of engineering, the Grubber is made from high-quality cold-rolled steel with a zinc lacquer finish.

A very popular tool designed for the breaking up of soil between plants in beds, borders and the vegetable patch without causing plant damage.

Featuring three sharp pointed prongs making light work of hard and stony ground, the tool also travels through at the correct angle so an upright position to be maintained avoiding any unnecessary back strain.

Part of the unique multi-change system, the tool head can be inter-locked with one of the many length handles in the Wolf Garten range to help prevent discomfort when working.

To remove or swap it with another tool head from the range, simply press the release button on the upper part of the handle.
